WQED History Documentary Series

The WQED History Series continues at Redstone for residents to enjoy! The first viewing to hit campuses will be "Portraits for the Home Front: The Story of Elizabeth Black". This is a remarkable tale of Elizabeth Black, a promising Pittsburgh artist who left her art career to join American Red Cross efforts during World War II. During her efforts, Elizabeth sketched hundreds of military personnel throughout Europe and sent the portraits back to families all across America. Elizabeth's son shared her interesting story of the project and intriguing memorabilia with WQED, who is now sharing it with everyone. Murrysville and North Huntingdon campuses have already experienced this unique telling. Greensburg is set for February 12, 2025. Please check with current activity calendar for specific time and location. We hope that you will join us for this, and future, WQED Documentary Series!

Guess How Many! Jar Wrap-up

Our Charity of Choice for December was the HOPE Program, supporting employees in need during financial hardships. Jars of disco balls were placed on each campus for participants to guess how many filled the jar. Our two winners were Harry Remaley, Greensburg campus, and Judy Barry, Murrysville campus. We raised $61 in support of the HOPE Program at Redstone! Thank you to everyone who supported.
